

HOLIDAY WISHES DO COME TRUE

Mike Pratt of Local 20, Kansas City, KS, has spent the last eight holiday seasons in search of bicycles to donate to area children for the holidays. He hits store sales and thrift stores, raises funds for new bikes, and salvages any old ones he can get his hands on. This year's bicycle giveaway was no different, as children visited a warehouse full of beautiful bikes hoping to pick their favorite. ■

Building Trades Volunteers Respond to Hurricane Sandy Victims

Steve Chati's home on Staten Island, NY, was prime real estate for the massive flooding that occurred along the East Coast during Hurricane Sandy. The borough suffered some of the worst destruction left by the superstorm, including at least 19 deaths.

Brother Chati, a member of Local 8, New York, NY, was unharmed, but his home was left ravaged by storm water.

Business agents from Staten Island's Building Trades answered the call to help a brother in need, and together helped perform repairs to the severely damaged interior. Flood damage was so extensive that entire walls were knocked down before being rebuilt.

New York City Mayor Michael Bloomberg and members of the media visited the area when it became clear that Staten Island neighborhoods had suffered some of the worst storm damage in New York, but it was union brotherhood that rebuilt Brother Chati's house. ■
